DETAILED ACTION

Election/Restrictions

Restriction to one of the following inventions is required under 35 U.S.C. 121:

- I. Claims 1-15, drawn to a method of monitoring food status at a storage location, classified in class 62, subclass 127.
- II. Claims 16-32, drawn to a method of monitoring cumulative food status of food moved between a plurality of locations, classified in class 702, subclass 188.
- III. Claims 33-50, drawn to a method of monitoring cumulative food status and determining an older product, classified in class 705, subclass 15.
- IV. Claims 51-65, drawn to a system for monitoring food status at a location, classified in class 62, subclass 127.
- V. Claims 66-82, drawn to a system for monitoring cumulative food status of food moved between a plurality of locations, classified in class 702, subclass 188.
- VI. Claims 83-99, drawn to a system for monitoring cumulative food status and determining an older product, classified in class 705, subclass 15.

The inventions are distinct, each from the other because of the following reasons:

Inventions I and II are related as combination and subcombination. Inventions in this relationship are distinct if it can be shown that (1) the combination as claimed does not require the particulars of the subcombination as claimed for patentability, and (2) that the subcombination has utility by itself or in other combinations (MPEP § 806.05(c)). In the instant case, the combination as claimed does not require the particulars of the subcombination as claimed since all elements of the subcombination are not claimed. The subcombination has separate utility such as a standalone monitoring system where no transfer to a second holding facility occurs.

Inventions I and III are related as combination and subcombination. Inventions in this relationship are distinct if it can be shown that (1) the combination as claimed does not require the particulars of the subcombination as claimed for patentability, and (2) that the subcombination has utility by itself or in other combinations (MPEP § 806.05(c)). In the instant case, the combination as claimed does not require the particulars of the subcombination as claimed since all elements of the subcombination are not claimed. The subcombination has separate utility such as a standalone monitoring system where no transfer to a second holding facility occurs.

Inventions I and IV, V, and VI are related as process and apparatus for its practice. The inventions are distinct if it can be shown that either: (1) the process as claimed can be practiced by another materially different apparatus or by hand, or (2) the apparatus as claimed can be used to practice another and materially different process. (MPEP § 806.05(e)). In this case the process can be practiced with a different apparatus. For instance, it could be practiced in an apparatus without a processor.

Inventions II and III are related as subcombinations disclosed as usable together in a single combination. The subcombinations are distinct from each other if they are shown to be separately usable. In the instant case, invention II has separate utility such as a monitoring method where no comparative age is tracked. See MPEP § 806.05(d).

Inventions II and IV, V, and VI are related as process and apparatus for its practice. The inventions are distinct if it can be shown that either: (1) the process as claimed can be practiced by another materially different apparatus or by hand, or (2) the apparatus as claimed can be used to practice another and materially different process. (MPEP § 806.05(e)). In this case the process can be practiced with a different apparatus. For instance, it could be practiced in an apparatus without a processor.

Inventions V and VI are related as subcombinations disclosed as usable together in a single combination. The subcombinations are distinct from each other if they are shown to be separately usable. In the instant case, invention V has separate utility such as a monitoring system for only a source and destination. See MPEP § 806.05(d).

Inventions III and IV, V, and VI are related as process and apparatus for its practice. The inventions are distinct if it can be shown that either: (1) the process as claimed can be practiced by another materially different apparatus or by hand, or (2) the apparatus as claimed can be used to practice another and materially different process. (MPEP § 806.05(e)). In this case the process can be practiced with a different apparatus. For instance, it could be practiced in an apparatus without a processor.

Inventions IV and V, VI are related as combination and subcombination. Inventions in this relationship are distinct if it can be shown that (1) the combination as claimed does not require the particulars of the subcombination as claimed for patentability, and (2) that the subcombination has utility by itself or in other combinations (MPEP § 806.05(c)). In the instant case, the combination as claimed does not require the particulars of the subcombination as claimed because the processing circuit of IV is not the same as the processing circuit of V, VI. The subcombination has separate utility such as a standalone monitoring system for a standalone storage unit.

Inventions V and VI are related as subcombinations disclosed as usable together in a single combination. The subcombinations are distinct from each other if they are shown to be separately usable. In the instant case, invention V has separate utility such as a monitoring system for only a source and destination. See MPEP § 806.05(d). Because these inventions are distinct for the reasons given above and have acquired a separate status in the art as shown by their different classification, restriction for examination purposes as indicated is proper.

Because these inventions are distinct for the reasons given above and the search required for Group I, IV is not required for Group II, III, V, VI, restriction for examination purposes as indicated is proper.

Because these inventions are distinct for the reasons given above and the search required for Group I, II, IV, V is not required for Group III, VI, restriction for examination purposes as indicated is proper.

Applicant is advised that the reply to this requirement to be complete must include an election of the invention to be examined even though the requirement be traversed (37 CFR 1.143).
